A Demand for Mechanics.

There is a large demand for labor. Plasterers, brick masons, carpenters and hod carriers are needed. The demand for lathers, stone masons and painters is not so heavy, but in a few months the large steel office buildings which only lost their interior furnishings and were not structurally damaged will have been cleaned of rubbish and then the work of fitting and decorating will require many hands.

It Is Fly Time.

The biologist brushed a fly out of his beard.

"It is early for these pests," he said. "I wish we could exterminate flies. They are as useless and as harmful as snakes.

"And how prolific! From June to September the average fly mother accumulates a family of 2,000,000 children. If all these children lived, the flies would crowd mankind off the earth.

"But flies as it fortunately happens, are particularly afflicted with microscopic parasites and with innumerable sorts of germ diseases. These things kill them off, and thye are also killed off by birds and bats and toads.

"An odd fact about the flies is that they never sit down. They could if they would—their hind legs would fold under them like a dog's or a horses. But no; no sitting don for Mr. Fly. He comes into the world on his feet, and on his feet he departs. Think of it, not to sit down once from birth to death!"

Expert Observation.

A simple observation and definite statement are among the highest activities of the trained mind. Every newspaper man knows that the faculty of seeing a thing just as it is, and writing an account containing all the facts and nothing else, omitting all feelings, impressions, arguments and inferences, is one of the rarest and most difficult attainments of expert training. Every teachr kenows that the ability to observe accurately, and to report neither more nor less than is observed, is the last result of high scientific training. Every lawyer knows that the artificial theory of the law of evidence that an untrained witness can divest his mind of everything but the facts of his personal knowledg and then state these, runs so counter to all the laws of human nature that the mere effort to do so usually reduces both witnesses and jury to that state of imbecility which has given rise to the professional tradition that all witnesses and jurors are fools. The are—in the court room—simply becaus they are forbidden to exercise any faculty except the one in which they are totally lacking, and they therefore appear to be lacking in all.—Fresno Republican.

D. E. O'KEEFE.....EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR

FOURH OF JULY IN REDWOOD

It Was Dull During the Day But at Night the Children Had a Grand Time.

While Redwood had to forego the pleasure of being host to the county and neighboring town to the south of us, still we were not without some recognition of the day, thanks to the energy and patriotism of the residents along Stambaugh street, to whom may all the honor and glory be given. For days the busy housewives of that pretty shaded little thoroughfare have been busy planning, cutting and sewing the red white and blue dresses for the girls and shirts and pants for the boys that our Natal Day might not pass unobserved, The men folks had laid plans too, and untied their purse strings so that the sinews of war might not be lacking to make a success of the celebration. And the little folks, those who were to shine, to parade in all the glory of patriotic attire, while singing the national songs, were counting the minutes until the joyful hour should arrive, and for whom fond parents, particularly "papas" with a memory of boyhood Fourths still in mind, were bringing home to smuggle under beds and in closets mysterious packages of odd sizes that our nation's day of birth might go out mid a burst of light and in "the rocket's red glare. After work, preparation and dreary waiting on the part of the youngsters the Fourth came clear, bright, not too hot and with no sweeping wind to intertere with the fullest enjoyment by the small boy of fire crackers which soon made the air resound like a battle was in progress. About 10 o'clock the result of the mothers' work was seen, as from house after house came forth the girls and boys of Stambaugh street, dressed tastily in neat dresses and suits made up of various combinations of "our own red, white and blue," and soon they were formed in line and with flags waving, a drum corps to lead, they took up their march up Stambaugh street to Main, up Main to A, up A to the station and then countermarched home again. The youngsters paraded well, kept in step to the drums' beat, and during their march sang our national airs. Everywhere they met with applause and cheers, waving of flags and hand-clapping, and those who stayed at home felt that Redwood was a pretty good place after all.

After the day parade the youngsters enjoyed themselves as only children can on a Fourth of July. About 8 o'clock in the evening they again assembled at headquarters on Stambaugh street, when the street and surrounding yards were as bright as day from the rows of lights strung across the street and in the yards. This time the older folks joined in the procession. Roman candles took the place of flags, and with red fire to light their way the procession began, up Stambaugh street again to Main, and as they turned into Main street they found the rest of the town was taking a hand, for all along the rest of their route the paraders marched under a canopy of bright stars from the skyrockets and candles which were set off all along the line of march. Cheer after cheer greeted them, and something more substantial in the shape of half dollars were thrown to the youngsters to increase their stock of fireworks. The procession increased in length as onlookers fell in behind and all returned to Stambaugh street to enjoy the big bonfire and the fireworks awaiting them. The children were served with ice cream and lemonade, and after being thus refreshed started the singing of songs in which their elders joined, and thus closed Stambaugh street's most successful celebration of the Fourth of July. To say to whom credit should be given would be to name every resident along the street, as every one did their share, the ringleaders, however, if we may term them such, appear to have been George Eikerenkotter, Joe McAuliffe, Ted Thompson and Dan Mullen. This custom of a locality celebration has been observed by the "Stambaugh Streetites" for several years, and is not only in honor of our Independence Day, but in memory of Dr. Stambaugh, for whom the street takes its name. May they continue to celebrate and set an example to all the town by showing what can be done when patriotism prompts us to put forth our best efforts Rah! Rah! Rah! for Stambaugh Streeters.

TOWN COUNCIL.

The board o trustees met in the town hall Monday evening in regular session. The principal discussion of the evening was regarding a disputed light bill in which the town had been charged up with service for four nights following the earthquake during which time no lights were used. The bill has been referred back to the Electric company for correction several times but as no reduction had been made and no member of the company been present at the board meeting to explain matters the trustees decided to hold up the bill until some representative of the Lighting company attend the board and make some needed explanations.

Residents of Jackson street petitioned the board for a sewer main. Mrs. Saunders personally appeared and asked that the main on the county road be extended northerly to permit its use by her. Both matters were referred to the proper committee with instructions to report at an early date

A petition was presented by the property owners of Phelps street asking that the width of the sidewalk be reduced from 10 to 8 feet thus allowing the road to be widened to that extent. As a contract for rocking the street is already being carried out no action was taken on the matter.

Ordinance No.60 was introduced and will be passed at the next meeting. By its terms the present liquor ordinance is amended so as to permit the local dealers to keep their places open until 12 o'clock p. m.

W. J. McCarvey was employed to expert the city's account at a cost not to exceed $50.

The pound master was instructed no to take up any cattle which had been staked on property with the property owner's consent.

On suggestion of Hynding it was decided to rock into the streets intersecting Arguella so as to provide crossings for pedestrians. The board decided to put pipes across Stambaugh streeg as drains if the property owners along that thoroughfare should be satisfied.

Dr. Maine, the health officer called attention to a cellar under the Germania hall saying it was a nuisance a it was the order of the board that the nuisance be abated.

A number of licenses to conduct saloons were then granted and the board adjourned.

Licenses were granted to the following local liquor dealers:

An act of Congress just adopted permits the entry, under the homestead act, of agricultural land lying within forest reserves. There is much such land which it would serv noe good purpose to withhold from settlement. In the setting apart of the numerous large forest reservations in California the boundaries were arbitrarily fixed and often included land that was not timber land and was not necessary to conserve the water supply. In the southern part of California the people asked to be excepted from the new regulation, where conservation of the water supply is of the utmost importance. Hence the Seventh and Eighth Congressional Districts (including the counties of Inyo, Tulare, Kern, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Ventura, Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Riverside, Orange and San Diego) are excepted from the provisions of the bill.

Little John Nichols, the 13-year old son of J.J.Nichols,of Palo Alto, drowned Tuesday afternoon in the Stanford lake, and after searching the best part of the night the remains were found Wednesday at 9 o'clock. The little fellow, together with twelve or fifteen companions, are in the habit of going to the lake every afternoon for a swim, and he did not return at his customary time. About 8 o'clock in the evening, one of his playmates went to the Nichols home and told Mrs. Nichols that he had been swimming and that he could not be found when the rest started for home.

Nothing definite can be learned from the small boys about the drowning, as they seem rather panic-stricken and those that have been questioned will not admit that they were there at the time. The boy was not a good swimmerandhad been helping himself along with a board, and it is thought lost his hold and sank. The position of the body when recovered suggested that he had been taken with cramps. Investigations were made, and his clothing was found in a boat, together with the garments of a larger boy. The lake was dragged Wednesday morning and the remains of the Nichols boy recovered, but there is still some mystery about the other clothing, as no trace of a second body had been found at a late hour this afternoon, and as far as can be learned no one is missing. The clothing contains a small amount of money, but no name. The boy they were thought to belong to was found safe at home.

The choir of the Catholic church picnicked with their friends at the Duff & Doyle ranch on the Fourth. Two busses conveyed the merry-makers to the scene of pleasure. Oceans of good things were brought along to eat and at an early hour they sought shady nooks and coolness. The hills resounded with merry laughter of the gay throng. It was indeed an enjoyable time for all present.

It is said that an efort is being mad to secure a new site fortheCatholic church down town, near the county ro The present location of the edifice has for many years been considered too remote from the larger part of the congregation. The strain and stress occasioned by the earthquake a over and Menloites are looking for diversion of some kind to sooth their shattered nerves. Many think that picnic is the only remedy. Consequently the arrangements for the parish picnic interrupted by the shake are likely to be resumed and a grand reunion of the peninsular counties be held in the near future.

The following report of Eugene Erhart on the Pilarcitos creek bridge was accepted and filed on motion of Debenedetti seconded by MacBain

San Francisco, June 30, 1906.

To the Hon. Board of Supervisors of San Mateo County, Cal.

Gentlemen: Having carefully examined the concrete bridge at Halfmoon Bay, I find the same in condition to be repaired. The foundation (piling) and base of arch on both sides I found to be in good condition. It first will require a temporary bridge or crossing to be built as that part of the arch taken out must be taken out and rebuilt at one time its full width. It will be necessary to build false work or centers under the entire arch and of sufficient strength to carry toe full weight of arch without any settling. The lagging of centers to fit close to bottom of arch. The entire concrete railing on both sides of roadway should be carefully taken down to the top of the arch. Then that portion of the arch should be taken out as far as same has been broken or cracked (about 36 feet). The arch taken out bould be taken or cut out so as to make the joint at right angles to the ridge the same shall then beyrebuilt and reinforced with heavy corugated rods or iron cables. The concrete for new work to be composed of small crushed rock, good coarse harp sand and Portland cement in quantities of 1 cement, 2 sand and 4 arts rock. This carefully put in will ive you a good and safe job. The centers under arch should be left in s long as possible to give the arch ime to get thoroughly set. The oint or starting of new work of arch o be in a line of the radius of arch. The wing walls can be drawn in and epaired sufficient to carry the fills nd look all right. I would advise puting on a good iron railing instead of concrete. I think the proper way o do this work would be to have ome competent man do this work on orce account approximately there should not be over 250 cubic yards of new concrete required.

Respectfully,

R. EHRHART

On motion of Coburn seconded by MacBain, Debenedetti was impowered to commence repairs of said bridge at once.

The application of D. McSweeney to remove the liquor permit from the Grand hotel in South San Francisco to another hotel which he has rented came up.

Attorney Edward F. Fitzpatrick, on behalf of Mrs. M. Kelley, the proprietress of the Grand hotel property opposed it, on the ground that the license was existing with the property before Mr. McSweeney's connection with it and should remain after he goes.

Mr. McSweeney replied that the license stands in his name and Mrs. Kelley refuses to extend thelease under and conditions. He believed she desired to conduct the hotel herself on his license.

He had paid over $2000 for the license and at one time had a tenant for the place but Mrs. Kelly would not accept the party. This was denied by Mrs. Kelly. Mr. Fitzpatrick suggested that the parties might compromise their difference and suggested a continuance whereupon MacBain moved that the matter be laid over for one month and it was seconded by Eikerenkotter.

Geo. C. Ross brought up the matter of the bond issue to build the new courthouse. He stated that at the last meeting it was suggested that more information was needed as to the amount to be raised to erect or repair the wrecked building. With that end in view of supplying the required information the services of A. L. Coffey, the architect, land Mr. Benson, a structural engineer, were secured. They had made a detailed examination and were prepared to give the board any information it desired. Mr. Coffey was sworn. He had built many structures in the county.

Mr. Coffey said he had made a thorough examination of the courthouse and in his opinion $125,000 would repair all th edamaeg done. The dome, he said, was of steel construction and was practically uninjured. For an additional $10,000 a steel frame could be provided for the remainder of the building. which would render the entire structure practically indestructible. He estimated the salvage in the structure in its present condition would amount to upward of $100,000.

Mr. Benson was also sworn. He had made a thorough examination of the building with Mr. Coffey and was certain that $125,000 would repair the building. He said the foundation was in first class condition and that much of the material in the first and second story could be saved.

All the supervisors agreed that the placing of the jail on the top story of the courthouse was a mistake. To remove the jail would strengthen the new structure and lessen the cost of the building.

L. P. Behrens was called upon for information as to the cost of a bond issue and stated that $100,000 running over a period of 40 years would require an average annual tax of 2 1-2 cents on each $100 of valuation, $125,000 would require 3 cents and $150,000 would necessitate 3 1-2 cents.

Chairman Coleman said he favored a bond issue but wanted a detailed statement of the amount to be raised. He suggested the cost of the furniture be added to the amount to be raised.He was not in favor of going ahead with the election until the full amount to be raised be known. Coburn expressed himself in a similar way.

Geo. C. Ross then read the proclamation as prepared by himself and the district attonrey calling for an election on August 8th. Mr. Ross stated that only the interest was payable on the bonds for the first four years so the taxes during these years would be very light and thus enable taxpayers to fully ercover from the recent disastr.

MacBain moved that the sum of $150,000 be issued by the board in bonds to repair and furnish the courthouse. The motion was seconded by Eikerenkotter, Coburn and Coleman voting no.

On motion of MacBain seconded by Eikerenkotter the proclamation was adopted Coleman and Coburn voting no.

At the meeting next Monday a form al call for the election will be made.

A map of Salada Beach was presented and filed and on motion of Eikerenkotter seconded by MacBain the following resolution was accepted decreating the streets delineated on the map to public use:

A Large Endowment.

The University of California has just had between $800,000 and $900,000 poured into its endowment fund, from the estate of M. Theo. Kearney, late of Fresno. The estate consists of 5400 acres, most of which is under a high state of cultivation. One of the splendid things about California is loyalty to her educational and charitable institutions. What appeals to her people as deserving of support gets it abundantly. No state in the Union has better reason to be proud of her record in this line than our own California.

Half starved, poorly sustained public institutions are unknown among us.

When the people of California call into existence a new line of effort for the public good they sustain and develop it splendidly. There is no spot on this continent where a strong sentiment of loyalty to education and to public benevolence has been more fully expressed. The California way to do things is the generous, wholehearted way. Her institutions through out the state are monuments of her substantial progress, for progress that ignores education and charity is not substantial.

Noted for Their Loyalty.

Californians are noted for their loyalty, and it might be imagined that the tremendous energy and enthusiasm which they are displaying in the reconstruction of their great metropolis was only another, though unusual evidence of the same sentiment. But the Federal Government is notswayed by such feelings. Distant from local influence it weighs the evidence pro and con and then acts with due deliberation. Immediately after the great fire it became necessary to award the contracts for carrying mail across the continent for the next four years. For thirty-five days before the fire the postal authorities had been weighing the mail, and so convinced were they they that the importance and growth of San Francisco would be unimpaired and uninterrupted, that the Department accepted the result of the weighing test as an indication of the prosperous future and awarded the contracts on that basis.

Cement in Great Demand.

Almost the entire cement supply in the United States will be on its way here in a few months. It is computed that in a short time San Francisco will use more cement in one day in the rebuilding than all the states of the Union were using a decade ago.

One of the large construction concerns of the city has engaged 1000 barrels of cement a day to be delivered in August. Later in the year it is expected that the demand will be such that the same firm will have to use 10,000 barrles a day, or about seventy carloads. This cement will be needed in the erection of about $5,000,000 worth of buildings.

It is impossible for the cement manufacturers on the coast to supply the demand, as all the cement manufactured out here is consumed under normal conditions. Cement will have to be imported from abroad. A large fleet of ships is now on the way to San Francisco from ports in Japan, Belgium, Australia, England, Germany and the Hawaiian islands. Even abroa the supply is being called upon to its fullest extent, and large orders are daily being placed by cable.

Eastern capital is interested in the situation, and some of the larger capitalists have sent men out on prospecting expeditions to see if some of the raw materials cannot be located. A cement quarry at the present time would be almost as valuable as a gold mine, and the same eagerness and enthusiasm attend the search for it as that for the yellow metal.
